

Hello,

I would like your help with an extremely important national project. Despite recent positive indications about our economic recovery, unemployment remains high. Millions of Americans are unable to find work, and I know that many of my constituents are struggling to make ends meet. I am deeply committed to ensuring that all Americans can take advantage of our nation's opportunities.

The Democratic Congress is currently considering a wide range of proposals to create jobs and spur economic growth. This is where I would appreciate your support. I want to make sure that we in Congress hear your voice on the best ways to move our country forward. So many great ideas come from Americans outside the confines of Washington D.C. I urge you to contact me with your ideas of how to create jobs. What do you think Congress can do to create more jobs? Or are there projects in your local community? What schools need more maintenance? What roads need to be fixed?

I encourage you to email me at FL23jobs@mail.house.gov with your ideas and input.

Americans have always come together in difficult times. We will meet our present challenges and put our country once again on the road to prosperity.

Thank you for your support.
